

HEALTH WORKERS ARE

TAKING INDUSTRIAL ACTION

You may notice that health workers in this hospital are taking industrial action today. This is not a step we've taken lightly, but NSW Health is at breaking point.

Health workers can no longer afford to survive on our wages. Health workers are leaving our public hospitals, and there is no one to replace them. Right now, there are 12,000 vacant positions across NSW Health.

Behind our caring smiles is a rising tide of burnout and frustration.

This Government is failing to deliver on its commitment to fair pay and working conditions for workers in NSW Health.

We are committed to ensuring that our industrial actions do not impact patient safety. We've made every effort to minimise any inconvenience that today's actions may cause to you.

WE NEED YOUR HELP

We're at breaking point. We need the Government to listen. You have the power to ensure NSW Health services continue to provide world-class support for you and your loved ones.

You can help the staff who take care of you and your family by signing this petition and scanning the QR code.
