

What are your views on professional registration?

The primary purpose of the National Registration and Accreditation Scheme (NRAS), administered by the National Boards and Australian Health Practitioner Regulation Agency (Ahpra), is to help keep the public safe. It does this by making sure that only health practitioners who are suitably trained and qualified to practise in a competent and ethical manner are registered.

You are invited to participate in a research project that seeks to understand the attitudes of registered health practitioners to regulation by completing an anonymous online survey. The survey will take no longer than 20 minutes to complete. The information collected from the survey will provide a snapshot of health practitioner attitudes to registration and what, if any, influence it has on their level of engagement with regulation and regulators.

To learn more and access the survey please click the link or scan the QR code below. If you would like further information on participating in this project please get in touch with Alan Morrison at Alan.J.Morrison@student.uts.edu.au

Attitude to registration survey link

This project is being conducted by Adjunct Associate Professor Alan Morrison, a PhD candidate at University of Technology Sydney, as part of a PhD investigating Health Practitioner Motivational Postures: The application of motivational posture theory to health practitioner regulation. Supervised by A/Professor Deborah DeBono and Dr Daniel Demant. Human Ethics Approval: ETH23-8337