

Actions speak louder than words: Gosford Kitchen members get results

Dear Member,

Yesterday, HSU members from the Food Services Department of Gosford Hospital took the extraordinary measure of industrial action to ensure that their concerns were taken seriously.

Industrial action is never taken lightly can often be daunting. Every member who participated should be proud, including and especially members who came in on their days off to support their colleagues.

By taking these steps, members demonstrated the power of collective action. As a result, Management have finally agreed to undertake an external review of the running of this Department, something that we have been requesting for over 7 months.

On Monday, Senior HealthShare Management have agreed to meet to discuss the specifics of the review including a timeframe for the review to be completed.

Management have agreed that this review will be conducted fairly and transparently, members should feel free from fear of any retribution.

Furthermore, members have agreed that if Management do not follow through with their promises, they will consider immediately holding another stop work meeting.

Actions like yesterday and the subsequent results, demonstrate the power of unionism.

If you any of your colleagues have not yet joined their Union they can do so either online www.hsu.asn.au/join or over the phone on 1300 479 679

In unity,

Gerard Hayes
Secretary, HSU NSW/ACT/QLD
